

JAMES GLASS'S FUNERAL

A Hundred Carriages Following an Old Sixth Warder to Holy Cross.

Politicians and sporting men thronged the neat little cottage 69 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, at the funeral of James Glass, the old Sixth ward sporting man. The remains reposed in an expensive coffin in the front parlor. The coffin was covered with black cloth, and was ornamented with heavy silver handles and a silver inscription plate. A sheaf of wheat, bound with roses, lay at the foot, and at the head, upon a lace-covered cushion, rested a pillow of white roses, with the word "Father" worked in violets. Just over the coffin was a large portrait of the deceased man dressed with black.

Coupled about the house were several beautiful floral pieces. A large bed of tea roses and immortelles, with the words "At Rest" formed in violets, was sent by Philip McAuley.

Another pillow of roses, with a snow-white dove perched above the words "True Friend," was presented by Thomas Shaughnessy. A tall jar of lilies was sent by Mrs. John J. Morris.

Mrs. Emma Randolph and Mrs. Mary Furman, the married daughters of the deceased, sat for hours by the coffin weeping.

Friends, passed slowly by. The visitors were received by Thomas H. Glass and John H. Glass, his sons. The former were ex-City Clerk John J. White, Francis H. White, ex-Assemblyman Thomas P. Walsh, Charity Commissioner James Byas, ex-Warden John J. Murphy, ex-Senator John J. Quinn, Capt. Dominick Mullany, James Leonard, ex-foreman of old 21 Engine, Bernard Melnycke, ex-Sergeant of the Mounties, Daniel Gage, James J. Hartigan, Acting Postmaster, Captain Gates, ex-Alderman Henry Cal. Justice Andrew Walsh, Detective Chambers, John O'Brien, the author, and many others.

Peter Pigott, Supervisor Armstrong, John H. Morris, Thomas Connolly, James Cowan, John Campbell, ex-Police Justice, Mr. William Lyon, and Alexander Steiner.

At 5 o'clock the coffin was closed and borne to the hearse by the pall bearers. They were Charles Johnson, John J. Quinn, John J. Quinn, Capt. Mullin, Martin Kays, Keeper of the New York City Hall; James Dunn, Keeper of the Brooklyn City Hall; Alderman Daniel O'Connor, and many others.

Four horses, drawn by black ponies, were drawn by four horses with nodding black plumes. A hundred Sixth warders marched behind the coach, each with a broad sword.

A COLORED boy, wanted between 15 and 17, Col. today and to-morrow at 125 Broadway.

A FEW young women, in white goods and apparel, wanted on Wednesday.

A GOOD house-washer, REUTHEIMER & CO., 17 South 3rd st., corner 1st st., Brooklyn, E. D.

BY AN important house, a young man as light person, come to New York, and others need apply. Address L. D., box 102 New York.

BOX MAKER wanted, batch maker, need not apply. J. N. BUDICK, 117 Prince st.

BOY wanted in a gente furnishing goods store; wages $2.50 a week. 24 New Street.

BOY wanted in an office. Address D., box 132, Sun.

CORSET DESIGNER, wanted by an old-established concern; one who thoroughly understands all branches of corset manufacturing and designing; a good, well-educated, experienced, courteous, tent and skillful man. Address, stating full particulars.

DEALER, THE DEVIL'S AUCTION, Specialty, Second Floor, 100 Broadway.

GYMNASIUM, wanted, wanted.

HABERDASHER, wanted, wanted.</